HOCKEY systems made to win

The family game

A field hockey-like game was first played in Greece around 300 BC, where players hit a ball with horn 'sticks'. Over the centuries similar games were played worldwide and it became known as 'the game played with sticks'. The word 'hockey' itself originates from the English word 'Hook'.

Modern hockey found its way through English public schools in the early 19th century, where it was played on natural grass. The striking circle was introduced and the rubber cube was replaced by a ball. Since the early 70s artificial hockey turf changed the game drastically because of the increased ball speed. Over the last decades, hockey evolved more and more as the sport played and enjoyed by all generations and the entire family.

Edel ID. Sand-obscured

COMBINING SAND-DRESSED CHARACTERISTICS WITH WATER-BASED ESTHETICS

Since the introduction water-based and sand-filled hockey surfaces, there has been a demand for hockey surfaces offering the best of both. With the introduction of our Edel ID. system for water-based hockey fields, also the opportunity arose to offer a sand-filled system in which the sand was invisible. We called it Edel ID. Sand-obscured, combining the characteristics of a traditional sand-dressed field with the esthetics of a water-based field.
